The DIMMER VIEW

by Max Goodwin

Father of Busing Changes Mind

There is a growing opposition to enforced busing.

Most Americans oppose it for various reasons — none of which is because they want to deny an education to any student.

An interesting approach to the growing busing problem is offered by editor George Shannon in the current issue of "The Citizen".

The editor takes aim on Professor James S. Coleman, formerly of John Hopkins University and now a sociologist at the University of Chicago.

The professor was the principal author of the controversial government-financed "Coleman Report" on which Federal courts subsequently based their orders for massive school busing to achieve "racial balance."

Now comes from Professor Coleman an acknowledgement that he was wrong in his 1966 conclusion that Negro students would do better if placed in classes dominated by white, middle-class children.

In so doing, he has — perhaps unintentionally — made some startling admissions. These admissions are startling not because of any great new truths, but for the fact that they are now brazenly proclaimed without so much as a "by your leave" for the damage they have done, Editor Shannon says.

While disclaiming personal responsibility for the disaster which befell public education in the wake of the Coleman report, the professor now admits — nine years after the fact — that the courts were wrong in using the report to try to justify forced busing.

Professor Coleman now admits that racially integrated classrooms take on "characteristics of the lower-class black classrooms," uncontrollable disorder, Shannon reports.

In other words, he admits that the mixing of pupils, instead of raising the achievement level of Negroes without affecting that of their white classmates, as he had claimed, actually produces a leveling-down, or lowering of scholastic accomplishments for both.

But here are the big eye-openers:

The real purpose of school integration, Professor Coleman revealed, is not to promote better education for American children, but to promote social integration.

School integration, he adds, is not the only way, nor even the best way to promote a social integration. "For example," he says "activities that encourage racial intermarriage could be much more effective in creating stable forces for social integration."

Although his classroom experiment has failed, leaving a trail of wreckage in its wake, the professor undoubtedly will have the continued support of egghead educators, crackpot clergymen, demoralized entertainers and sociologists masquerading as journalists in the promotion of his new goal of massive interracial marriage, Shannon avers.

While this approach comes on strong, and will disturb a great number of Americans, it does expose some of the thinking that is being generated for the world of tomorrow.

Ronald Reagan Says:

The Democrats sponsored a war on poverty. And six years later there were more people on welfare than ever before. They spoke loudly and piously of peace, but the policies they followed perpetuated the longest war in history.

Joseph R. Holmes "The Quotable Ronald Reagan" (Speech, June 22, 1972)

FIREMAN'S FRIEND — Andy Alexander, 18, a 1974 Monte Vista graduate, receives a check for $25 from Spring Valley fireman Rick Sherard, president of the firemen's Local 1434 it was the union's way of thanking Alexander for suppressing a fire near his home December 8. He was working on his car around 4:30 p.m. when he smelled smoke and discovered its source was a neighbor's home at 4112 Camino Paz. Alexander grabbed a garden hose, entered the garage of the burning home and brought the flames under control before fire trucks arrived.

Asks Owners to Etch Items

Police Tighten Noose On Swap Meet Thieves

Swap meet sale of stolen merchandise is going to be progressively harder is the word from the Lemon Grove Sheriff's office.

In a Sunday morning operaton 14 deputies from the Lemon Grove facility; 94 reserve deputies from all over the county, plus 173 officers from other agencies in San Diego and other California counties and officers of the California Department of Justice — all in plain clothes, visited the Spring Valley Swap Meet, near Sweetwater rd. and Jamacha blvd.

In teams of five they visited all the booths at the peak of display time — about a half hour after opening, searching out items believed to have been stolen.

The items suspected of being stolen were impounded at the Sheriff's substation at Santee.

Serial Number Key

The sellers at the meet were required to fill Dept. of Justice forms. Names and serial numbers of merchandise displayed were relayed to a nearby mobile communications van where the information was fed into a computer at the Orange County Sheriff's Department. The computer searches its memory bank of countless names and serial numbers and reports immediately if a stolen serial number or a wanted name comes in.

Several arrests were made but the thrust of the operation was to identify persons with property which later might be identified as stolen. It also will serve as a deterrent to selling stolen items at swap meets; to provide intelligence and for training purposes.

Etch to Aid

Sgt. Ron Wibe of the Sheriff's Lemon Grove office, who helped mount the operation, said that the computer could be responsible for returning a great number of stolen items to rightful owners if owners would etch driver's or social security numbers on their property — particularly those things that do not have numbers — such as furniture and clothing. Sheriff's Detective Roger Jacobs said that the Sunday operation will probably change many sellers of stolen property about being safe. "These visits may happen again."

"In addition to etching personal numbers on items, owners should record serial numbers to turn in quickly when theft occurs," Jacobs said.

Sgt. Wibe said, "With Justice Department forms on vendors, a list of their associates and a description of the property, we have a good basis for finding thieves and recovering stolen property."

Officers from 15 southern California police agencies took part in the operation and a wealth of new information has gone into the police computer.

Etch Pencils Provided By L.G. Kiwanis

Following the Swap Meet Operation Sunday, Rev. Mike Maxson, president of the Lemon Grove Kiwanis club announced that the club would sponsor Operation Identification at the Lemon Grove Sheriff's office at 7859 Broadway.

Secretaries in the office hand out electric etching pencils supplied by the Kiwanis club. The pencils may be taken home for a reasonable length of time.

Window signs advising would-be burglars that the resident has etched his valuables, thereby making them nearly worthless for selling, will be given to etch-pencil users.

With all the new Christmas gifts in many homes, burglars could find thievery profitable," Rev. Maxson said. Etching warns purchasers that they are receiving stolen goods and that they may be found and prosecuted. Past police experience indicates that burglar and buyer alike are very wary of identifiable items."

The Kiwanis club will provide three new etch pencils to one supplied by the Sheriff.

We encourage everyone to use this theft deterrent. It's free. It not only helps the user but it makes the possibility of getting stolen items back much more probable."

51 Yr. Old Building is Safety Hazard

Lemon Grove School to be Razed

An old landmark in Lemon Grove bows out to progress soon, ending over fifty years service to the Lemon Grove School District.

The old Lemon Grove School, built in 1924 and declared unsafe for students in 1933, will be razed, probably early next year. It is located at the intersection of Central ave. and School In., on the property of Lemon Grove Junior High.

When the six-classroom school was built, it housed all elementary and junior high students in Lemon Grove in six classrooms. Administrative offices for the superintendent and principal plus storage and maintenance facilities made up the rest of the building.

Field Act Seals Fate

In 1933, following the Long Beach earthquake, the Field Act was passed halting new school building construction which did not incorporate earthquake resistance into the design. The act also ordered a phase-out of existing buildings that were not earthquake safe.

The school's classes were phased out by 1953 and the building has been used for printing and mimeographing facilities and storage of maintenance supplies and equipment in years hence.

Also in 1953 the adjacent Lemon Grove Junior High underwent an extensive earthquake remodeling of the school, opened its doors to students. Elementary schools serving the district at that time were Golden Avenue, Vista La Mesa and Monterey Heights. Today there are six elementary and two junior high schools in the district.

A plan to use maintenance personnel to raze the building is being considered as a means of cutting the estimated $20,000 demolition cost.

Farewell Tea

A tea is tentatively planned for former students of the school, to be held shortly before it is razed. No date has been set for the farewell gathering, as the date for razing the building is unsettled.

School Supt. Dr. Robert Sutton said that the building could be felled as early as February.

Among thousands who attended the school is Lemon Grove attorney Jim Dorman, a trustee on the school district's governing board.

The building will be replaced with sidewalks, curbing, landscaping and possibly additional parking space for the junior high school, Sutton said.

Spring Valley Man Dies in Sunday Accident

Funeral services are being held Friday for a Spring Valley man who was killed in an auto accident on Jamacha rd. about 6:45 p.m. Sunday.

Andrew Anderson, 19, a roofer for Mission Roofing, of 435 Maria ave., Spring Valley, was taken to El Cajon Valley Hospital where he died about 45 minutes later.

Records show that his car was hit by one being driven by Shawki Bachoua, 36, of Chula Vista.

Services are being held at Conrad's Mortuary in Lemon Grove.

Anderson is survived by his parents with whom he lived and a sister, Toni, of the same address. Another sister and his grandparents live elsewhere.

Water to Cost More in 1977

Your water bill is going up.

It will be increased by at least 75 cents an acre foot beginning in July.

The raise represents an increased surcharge in the wholesale cost of water to 22 San Diego County Water Authority member agencies. Helix Water District is one of these.

A spokesman said that it is usual for the 75 cents increase to be larger than that by the time it reaches the consumer. The District now pays $64 an acre foot for water. An acre foot is 326,000 gallos, the average amount a family of five might use in a year.

When State Water Project water is introduced into the San Diego Aqueducts early in 1977, an additional surcharge will be added to the wholesale price for those agencies receiving treated water. Those with treatment plants will not be affected.

Hearings Show Adult Opposition, Student Support for Smoking Area

Parents and students of the Grossmont Union High School District addressed the district's governing board last week as the final phase of input on the question of liberalizing on-campus student smoking rules came to a close.

Adults who addressed the board Monday evening, December 15, at Valhalla High School were nearly unanimously opposed to permissive smoking on school grounds. Most of the students who spoke favored establishing designated smoking areas on campus to relieve what many term an intolerable situation in smoke-filled restrooms. Enforcing anti-smoking regulations in school lavatories has been a difficult problem for school staff.

A County Health official spoke at the hearing in opposition to the designated smoking areas on the basis of the health hazards of cigarette smoking.

Input Weighs Against

Supt. Leland B. Newcomer submitted a summary of written and public hearing comments on the permissive legislation, which outlined sentiments of four interest groups gathered in weeks prior to the meeting.

He reported that community and parent expression, for the most part gathered from local Community Action Committee meetings, indicated "strong, almost overwhelming rejection" of a permissive smoking policy. Exceptions were the Continuation School and the C.A.C. at El Cajon High where a designated smoking area was approved by a slim margin.

Student sentiments, on the other hand, showed consistent support for an on-campus smoking area. A central theme brought up by students was the enforcement difficulties under the present policy and a belief that relieving the restrictions would make for a better school environment, the summary said. Exceptions were El Capitan High students.

Newcomer's summary said that staff and administrative expressions were opposed to a policy change due to "the complexity of the enforcement problems weighed against the moral and health aspects."

Consideration of the policy change was prompted by the passing of SB 171 which permits local high school districts to determine their own policies regarding smoking. Smoking on campus is a violation of state school policy until January 1.

The Grossmont governing board is expected to vote on the issue at its next session on January 12.

Kramer who lives at 7555 High st., Lemon Grove, won the awards for his one-hour documentary on the Vietnamese refugee arrival called "Options: The Refugee" and his 30-minute feature on the Mexican community of Loreto, which was part of a series, produced by Kramer, on the new Baja highway and its effect on Mexican life.

GUHSD Board Delays Boundary Change Decision

The governing board of Grossmont Union High School District moved last week to delay for one month a decision regarding redistricting of its nine east county high schools, to permit parents to organize community feedback to the plan.

Supt. Leland Newcomer said that redistricting will be necessary to accommodate anticipated enrollment excesses at two schools — Santana and Spring Valley's Monte Vista.

District-wide enrollment has increased about four percent annually over the past four or five yetrs, he said.

Boundary changes, affecting each of the nine district schools, are being considered to prevent service inequities between schools in the Grossmont district, Newcomer said.

Some parents of students who would be affected by the boundary changes addressed the board, remarking about the instability created by a sudden change of school.

Garage Burglarized

Sam Charles Deeter, who operates a garage at 7917 Lester, ave., Lemon Grove, reported that a suspect, whom he named to sheriff's deputies, had taken tools, body work equipment and an MG motor from his premises while he was out shopping one day last week.

He said the value of the equipment taken was more than $1,000.

Rain in Short Supply

According to Richard Mark, the total for the season which started July 1 is 1.46, well behind the 3.57 inches which had fallen by the same date last year.

RADIO STAR Hal Perry, the man who became known as Throckmorton P. (The Great) Gildersleeve, during the heyday of network radio, chuckled and chatted with a group of fans at Vista La Mesa Christian Church Friday. Perry appears occasionally in television commercials today and is the official spokesman of Gibraltar Savings, sponsors of the local appearance.

Sobering Thoughts on Holiday Drinking

By John Kowalczyk

Figures, the saying goes, can be misleading. One that pops up every holiday is that 50 percent of all traffic fatalities in this country are linked to drunk driving. The percentage first appeared in 1968 when the Secretary of Transportation reported to Congress on alcohol and traffic safety.

Evidence now shows that, at least in more recent years, 50 percent may be a bit high.

According to Steve Gallagher, the County's assistant traffic safety coordinator, a Rutgers University research team believes that the Secretary's report may be "subject to error due to systematic reporting biases." Though no evidence has crossed this desk to verify the Rutgers claim, there are state and local figures which support it.

Gallagher said that last year there were 4,394 reported accidents in San Diego County, resulting in fatalities, injuries, property damage or a combination. Driving while under the influence of alcohol was the prime violation in 511 cases, about 12 percent. Injury and property accidents not involving fatalities could have influenced the low percentage.

California Highway Patrol's 1973 figures indicate that 18.8 per cent of drivers involved in fatal accidents had a blood alcohol level of .10 or above (under the influence in the legal sense), and 29.3 percent of the drivers had the presence of alcohol in the blood, Gallagher said.

Loss of Judgement

On an individual level, the statistics lose relevance. A high or low incidence of national, state or local accident rates isn't going to affect a drinker's judgement. An increase of alcohol in his system will.

Nan Nobilette, spokesman at the local office of the National Council on Alcoholism who still uses the 50 percent figure, says that it is the judgement capacity which is the first to go in a drinking situation. The motorist who's had a few may think he has complete control over his vehicle by maintaining the speed limit and staying on the road. The danger, she says, is hidden unless a situation requiring quick judgement befalls the driver, as when a child runs into the path of the car.

The degree of delay depends upon the degree of intoxication.

Research from Indiana University concludes that persons with a blood-alcohol content of 1.5 percent have increased their chances for a hazardous error in judgement 25 times. At the .10 percent level, the chances increase six times.

Sobering Thoughts

If statistics aren't sobering, the legal consequences should be.

According to San Diego Municipal Court Judge Manuel Kugler, a first offense drunk driving charge can carry a sentence of up to six months in jail, a $500 fine and suspension of driver's license for half a year.

Things get tough for second offenders. A second arrest within five years means a mandatory sentence to jail of at least 48-hours and a $250 fine. The defendant may be sentenced to as much as one year in jail and can be fined up to $1,000. Same goes for third time offenders within a seven-year period.

Both second and third conviction cases demand license suspensions, one year for second time offenders and three years for third offenders.

On top of fines and sentences, the court may insist first offenders attend a six-session course on the "Impact of Drinking and Driving," conducted at the UCSD Extension Division of the County Courthouse.

Enough trouble? Don't forget the likelihood of a substantial increase in auto insurance rates and the personal embarrassment of all of these consequences.

1,200 Officers

It's enough to make a prudent driver go light on the sauce during the coming New Year's holiday, the worse time of the year for drunk driving, according to CHP.

Law enforcement teams in the county are concentrating on highway safety during the holidays with a force of 1,200 officers from 13 cities, the Sheriffs Department and CHP.

Erratic driving, speeding, driving with high beam lights and running stop signs will be cause for a stop. Drinking drivers will be tested and those with blood-alcohol levels above .10 percent will be presumed under the influence.

Random stops will not be made, law enforcement officials say.

Bishop Issues Christmas Words

The following is the annual Christmas message of Most Rev. Leo T. Maher, Bishop of the Roman Catholic diocese of San Diego, issued by the Diocesan Office for Apostolic Ministry, Alcala Park:

Dear People of God:

In a world more and more consumed with the power of material wealth and possessions, in an age of technological advance never before witnessed, the simple birth of a child in Bethlehem again comes to remind us of true values.

At Christmas we celebrate with the greatest joy the coming of our Savior, Jesus Christ, an event as significant in 1975 as it was in Bethlehem those many years ago. For today, as it has always been, it is a reminder that the creator of the whole universe came to man in human form, to lead mankind on the road to true freedom, to infinite love and to eternal happiness.

Over the years man has constantly tried to thwart God's will and loving purpose, and as a result brought misery and pain where there should be joy and peace. Mankind too readily forgets the lesson and the love which God showed in the birth of his only Son, in a stable, the very incarnation of the Word by which we should live.

But each year, at Christmas in particular, we have the joy and the opportunity to renew again our pledge to love and peace among men, to joy and thanksgiving among peoples around the world. And each year may we progress further along the true path of the pursuit of happines for all mankind through the love of God and the love of each other.

It is my sincere wish that the spirit of the first Christmas with its message of "peace to all men of goodwill" may encourage us all to work and pray for that peace and enjoy its blessings in the coming year of our national Bicentennial celebrations and for all the years to come.

A happy and blessed Christmas to all!

District Experiment

Adult School Class Fee to Double For Spring Semester

Adult school fees in the Grossmont Union High School District will rise to $2 spring semester, the District's governing board decided last week. $1 per course has been the tuition charged district-wide.

The Board increased fees as part of an administrative plan for a budgetary constraint of $147,000 on the Adult School, one of several belt tightening measures by the District.

The $2 fee is experimental, and an evaluation of its impact will be made at the end of the semester.

Harry C. Riley, president of the Grossmont District Adult School, said the increase will generate an additional $11,000.

Riley recommended the doubling of fees following a study of a State Department of Finance survey which revealed "considerable variation in tuition and lab charges" in adult schools statewide.

Grossmont's $1 per class tuition fee was found to be slightly under the state average, he said, while lab fees (covering costs of materials used in the classes) were considerably above average.

The survey showed that 30 percent of the adults schools in the state charged no tuition, while others charged tuition fees by the individual class or by establishing a semester amount, thus permitting a student to take as many classes as he wishes at one price.

All schools maintain certain exemptions, such as for senior citizens and hardship cases, in addition to legal exemptions.

Grossmont Adult school enrollment exceeds 3100, Riley said. Spring Semester begins January 26.

Fifty hot meals are served each weekday afternoon at the Lord of Life Lutheran Church, 950 Luther dr. in Spring Valley.

The one-year program was launched December 1 through a $9,800 grant from the County Employees' Charitable Organization (CECO). Funds will be matched by the Lemon Grove-Spring Valley Nutrition Board.

Museum Film Explores Stonehenge Mysteries

"The Mystery of Stonehenge," a documentary which explores the legends that have grown up around the great stones on England's Salisbury plain, is shown this weekend at the Natural History Museum in Balboa Park.

The film includes a re-enactment of Druid religious ceremonies, visual exploration of the stones, archways, holes and barrows and the claim by scientists that primitive man erected these gigantic monoliths as an observatory and computer that would help predict eclipses of the sun and moon.

The film is presented Saturday and Sunday at 1:30 and 3 p.m. at no additional charge over the Museum admission charge of 75 cents for adults. Children 16 and under are admitted free.

This Week's RECIPE

Chicken Salad Sits Well in Avocado

You can do more with chicken salad than turn it into a tasty sandwich. Nestle it in a lush, golden green avocado half-shell and you've got a palate-pleasing party dish.

You'll be happy to know avocado half-shells are really very easy to prepare. Just halve the avocado lengthwise and twist gently to separate. Remove the seed with a spoon and use with or without the skin. Brush the cut surface with lemon or lime juice to keep the avocado a pretty golden green until guests arrive.

AVOCADO AND CHICKEN SALAD

(Makes 6 servings)

3 cups diced cooked chicken
1½ cups diced celery
4 hard cooked eggs, diced
½ cup slivered toasted almonds
½ cup pineapple tidbits
½ cup salad dressing or mayonnaise
1 tbsp. juice from pineapple
3 avocadoes, peeled, seeded and halved
Lettuce leaves

Mix chicken, celery, eggs, almonds, and pineapple with salad dressing (or mayonnaise) which has been thinned with pineapple juice. Heap mixture into avocado halves on lettuce leaves.

Serve as appetizer or luncheon salad.

Health Dept. Lists Kitchen Tips for Safe Holiday Meal

The kitchen is a busy place during the holidays, and without certain precautions it can also be a harmful place, says the County Health Department.

Holiday dinners and leftovers should be handled in such a way as to avoid the growth of salmonella, bacteria found frequently in poultry, meat, dairy products and eggs which can cause food poisoning.

To ensure against salmonella growth, the Department recommends allowing time for meat to thaw in the refrigerator. When cooking a turkey, use a thermometer to be sure the center of the bird reaches 165°F. Stuffing should be cooked outside the bird.

Food preparation areas and utensils should be thoroughly cleaned to prevent the spread of the harmful organisms from one food to another.

Wash hands when handling foods and don't leave leftovers on the table to cool; refrigerate immediately.

Room temperatures are ideal for the bacteria's growth.

French, Japanese Treasure on Exhibit

Toulause-Lautrec is on exhibit now through January 11 at the Fine Arts Gallery in Balboa Park.

A collection of original drawings and lithographs including his first and most famous poster "Moulin Rouge," are on view.

Also exhibited is the pottery work of Shoji Hamada, a master potter who is considered a cultural treasure by the Japanese, according to the Gallery.

A dozen of Hamada's works will be on view for an indefinite period.

World Hockey League Play

Peter McNamee Faces Old Team Mates Friday

Winger Peter McNamee who was acquired by the WHA San Diego Mariners in a trade with the Phoenix Roadrunners for center-winger Dave Walter last week is known as a tough, hustling player who is adding strength to the right side of the San Diego team.

He is scheduled to be on the ice Friday night against his old team mates.

The 25-year old 5-11, 200-pounder who was born in Jamaica, developed into one of the league's better cornermen during the last half of the 1974-75 campaign at Phoenix. He finished with nine goals and 19 assists with 79 penalty minutes in 55 games.

McNamee began his career as a defenseman, had one goal and two assists with 32 penalty minutes in 15 appearances with Phoenix this season before spending the last week with that club's Tulsa farm team. Last year he had five game-winning goals.

He started his professional hockey at Roanoke of the Southern League in 1973-74 after a collegiate stint at the U. of Pennsylvania. He played with WHA Vancouver and Tulsa in the early portion of the 1974-75 campaign before being acquired by Phoenix along with winger John Mignealt and defenseman Serge Beaudoin for winger Hugh Harris.

Game time Friday is 7:30.

Juniors to Aid Tennis Teachers

COTO DE CAZA, CA. — What makes a great tennis instructor?

Coaches from throughout the country will have a chance to find out from very reliable sources — students who have become top-ranked juniors — during the winter session of the United States Tennis Academy, which convenes here December 27 through 31 at The Vic Braden Tennis College.

The juniors, from the highly-competitive Southern California area, will participate in panel discussions and courtside critiques to let coaches know what the students feel are helpful, or unhelpful, teaching techniques.

Information on The Vic Braden Tennis College, the United States Tennis Academy, the National Foundation for Tennis Research and other programs may be obtained by writing Vic Braden, at 22000 Plano Trabuco Canyon rd., Trabuco Canyon, CA, 92678.

Riverside Purses Get Modest Hike

RIVERSIDE — Healthy purse increases have been registered the third straight year for the Winston Western 500 and Permatex 200 NASCAR stock car road races to be held the weekend of Jan. 17-18, 1976, at Riverside International Raceway.

A total of $139,640 will be on the line — $117,470 to be distributed among 35 starters in the 14th annual Winston Cup Grand National 500-miler and $22,170 up for grabs among 40 drivers in the companion feature for NASCAR Late Model Sportsman stock cars.

The purse increases are a modest 2.86 per cent for the Winston race and 4 per cent for Permatex drivers. Since 1963, when the 500-miler inaugurated major league stock car racing on the West Coast, the Riverside purse has been upgraded 77.3 per cent from $66,245.

Permatex drivers have enjoyed a 154.8 per cent increase from $8,700 in 1967.

A total of $1,167,120 has been on the line for Grand National drivers each January since 1963, and $163,220 for sportsman drivers since 1967.

Purse figures for the two upcoming races appear on entry blanks mailed this week from Daytona Beach, Fla., where headquarters are located for the National Assn. for Stock Car Auto Racing, Inc.

Baseball Stars In Palm Springs 10th Golf Classic

PALM SPRINGS — Four of baseball's robust sluggers — Johnny Bench, Reggie Jackson, Mike Schmidt and Greg Luzinski — will transform that power to socking golf balls in the $30,000 American Airlines Golf Classic, announced tournament chairman Thomas J. Ross Jr.

The 10th annual Classic, featuring football and baseball stars as partners, will be played Jan. 30-Feb. 1 at the Canyon Hotel Racquet & Golf Club.

First prize in the 54-hole best ball event is $10,000, which the partners split.

Schmidt, Philadelphia Phillies third baseman, led the majors in home runs with 38. He also drove in 95 runs. Jackson, Oakland A's outfielder, tied for most homers in the American League with 36 and knocked in 104 runs.

Luzinski, Phillies outfielder, led the majors in runs batted in with 120 and also hit 34 homers.

Bench, catcher of the World Champion Cincinnati Reds, walloped 28 homers and knocked in 110 runs.

Besides power, Bench, Jackson and Schmidt also displayed finesse and touch in the last Classic. All three finished in the top six places. Luzinski did not play.

Defending champions are Oakland's Sal Bando, A's third baseman, and Marv Hubbard, Raiders running back.

Ticket prices are $3 for adults and $1 for children under 16. Proceeds go to the United Way of The Desert.

Why It Cracked?

The Liberty Bell cost only $303.

Busy Schedule for Aztec Cagers

After a week off, the San Diego State basketball team will resume play with a flurry after Christmas.

The Aztecs take to the road on December 27 for a game with Nevada (Reno) and then return for home games with St. Francis, Pa. on December 30, New Mexico on January 2 and Colorado on January 5. The St. Francis game is scheduled for Peterson Gym on the Aztec campus, while the New Mexico and Colorado games will be played in the San Diego Sports Arena. Tip off time for all games is 8 p.m.

San Diego State evened its record at 4-4 last week with home victories over Central Michigan (73-59) and the University of San Diego (78-62). Prior to those home games the Aztecs had played six straight games on the road to open the season. The games also ended a string in which San Diego State played six games in a 10 day span from December 10 to December 19.

Coria Outboxes Lujan In Arena Fight Show

Danny Millsap's second Sports Arena show last week had some good names but the fighters' performances were less than enthusiastic.

Featherweight Manny Lujan, the San Diego high school lad who cracked out 25 victories before suffering a defeat, was overpowered by Ruben Coria, a little scrapper from Mexico City whose intensity seemed to hold Lujan in awe.

In the 10-rounder, Lujan had Coria in trouble a couple of times but didn't have the determination to move in on him. Lujan was wobbled several times by Coria's jolting crosses. Except for the opening couple of rounds, it was Coria all the way. The judges settled it as a split decision for Coria.

There was another 10-rounder, this one between light-heavyweights. Carlos Tijerina of San Diego engaged "Buddha" Brooks of Los Angeles. Tijerina appeared out of shape and Brooks seemed to have come to the fights just for the ride from L.A.

Brooks was worse than Tijerina so Tijerina was awarded a unanimous decision. Brooks also lost a point for a low blow.

The prelims was where the excitement was. Juan Morales decked John Lujan three times in a welterweight bout scheduled for six. At 2:37 of the second round the referee called a halt to the proceedings. The Lujan fighters are brothers.

A four-round featherweight ended in an action filled draw between Santiago Meza of Chula Vista and Joe DaBacca of Azusa.

Millsap said that he is negotiating with some heavyweights for a mid-January card.

The card will be at previously low prices with parking free.

Top Racers in Winston Western

Richard Petty and the "good ol' boys" will kick off NASCAR's 28th Winston Cup Grand National season in the Winston Western 500 at Riverside International Raceway on January 18.

The entry list is expected to include last year's winner, Bobby Allison, driving his last race in the red, white and blue Penske Matador that enjoyed almost its only success on the Riverside 2.62-mile road course.

Another entry is expected from Buddy Baker in the Bud Moore Ford, the winning combination in NASCAR's final two events of 1975 — Dixie 500 at Atlanta and Times 500 at Ontario — and former Riverside winners Cale Yarborough and Ray Elder should add to the caliber of the 35-car starting field.

The 14th annual Riverside stock car 500-miler, oldest continuous major NASCAR race on the West Coast, will be augmented by the 10th renewal of the Permatex 200 for Late Model Sportsman stock cars, to be held on January 17.

An announcement is expected shortly from NASCAR Director of Competition Lin Kuchler in Daytona Beach, Fla., about new engine rules for 1976, but insiders have indicated that anticipated new carburetor restrictions will not be in effect in time for the Riverside road race.

A strong West Coast contingent of drivers, growing ever more familiar with Riverside's eight-turn stock car layout, will be headed by Jimmy Insolo, Hershel McGriff, Elder, Chuck Wahl and Sonny Easley.

Tickets for the $100,000 internationally (F.I.A.) listed event also open to drivers of the other major racing associations are now on sale.

HoC Month's Star Hoc Month's Star

Joe Roth, who quarterbacked U.C. to a tie for the Pacific Eight football title and ranked sixth among the nation's passers, has been named Star of the Month for November by the San Diego Hall of Champions Breitbard Athletic Awards Committee.

The former Granite Hills High and Grossmont College student compiled a dazzling record despite having sat on the bench through the first two games of the season and most of the third. Given a chance in the final quarter of the Washington State contest, he guided the Bears to a come-from-behind victory, and the team wound up with a 6-1 mark.

Roth figured prominently in Cal's defeat of USC and Stanford and wound up the year with 126 passing completions in 226 attempts for 1,880 yards and 14 touchdowns.

The Hall of Champions also granted Certificates of Merit to Jeff Hoobler and Mike Gilbert.

Hoobler, the son of former San Diego police chief Ray Hoobler, was named for his outstanding football performance at end as Navy beat Army, an effort for which he was tabbed defensive player of the game.

Gilbert, San Diego State's star defensive tackle was singled out for being elected to the AP All-West Coast second team.

Grossmont College's cross country team was voted a Certificate of Merit for capturing its fifth straight S. Cal. junior college title and its fourth consecutive California championship.

Amalfitano Wins Padres Coach Job

Former San Francisco Giants standout Joey Amalfitano has been added to the coaching staff of the San Diego Padres, Padres General Manager Peter Bavasi announced.

Amalfitano will coach third base with Jim Davenport moving to first base and Dick Sisler handling hitting instruction. Rounding out manager John McNamara's staff are pitching coach Roger Craig and bullpen coach Whitney Wietelmann.

Amalfitano, 41, joins the Padres after having served as a member of the Giants coaching staff from 1972 through the end of last season. Prior to that, he had been on the staff of the Chicago Cubs from 1967-71.

A 10-year veteran with the Giants (both when the club was in New York and San Francisco), Houston and the Cubs, he posted a career batting average of .244 with 123 runs batted in. Primarily a second baseman, he played every infield position at one time or another and also saw limited action in the outfield.

Amalfitano was originally signed by the Giants as a bonus baby out of St. Anthony High School in Long Beach. He left the Giants organization in 1962 when he was Houston's number one pick for $125,000 in the expansion draft only to return a year later before finishing his playing career with the Cubs (1964-67).

His best playing season came in 1960, his first full season of action in the majors, when he hit .277.

He originally broke into professional ball with the Giants as the bonus rule in existence at that time called for him to remain on the major league level for two years. Following four years in the minors, he returned to the majors in 1960 with San Francisco.

TAKE FIVE

By John E. Wirges

Christmas again. Bah. Humbug.

People walking around with a silly grin on their kissers, laughing a lot and wishing each other happiness, health and good tiding. Even the kids are behaving themselves, more or less.

It's enough to make you sick. Imagine, perfect strangers being civil to each other, holding doors, saying "please" and "thank you," and all that nonsense. Folks, who 50 weeks of the year wouldn't give you the time of day, walk around with stupid smiles for two weeks of holiday celebration, gooing all over the place and gushing forth warmth and cheer.

Who needs it? How can you trust what you see when you know better? Such good will boggles the mind. Can a leopard change its spots? Do cops direct drunk drivers to the nearest tavern? Will virginity ever come back in style.?

The same guy who last July snarled, "watdaya want?" now smiles, "May I help you?" in department stores, fruit stalls, fish markets and sporting houses.

Makes all this gift giving, which is certainly foreign to the nature of man, even more distasteful, disgusting and downright patriotic.

And it isn't just the spirit of the thing, it's the damn cost. Prices have gone sky high. Do you know that in the last year the cost of living has gone up $1.37 a fifth?

And when you blow your whole bank account on gifts for other folks, what do you get in return?

The same old useless, unimaginative, colorless, drab junk you always get. Socks, shirts, ties and underwear. It's as if you were down on the end of the shopping list and only remembered when someone said, "Oh yeah, we gotta pick up something for Dad."

Just once I'd like to have one of my kin think deeply enough to come up with something I can't wear. But I dare not suggest that to them, because I'd end up with season tickets to the San Diego Sails or some such.

Now, booze is always welcome, but there are a few other things I'd like. And to insure I'd get one or two of them, I went out and gifted myself with the damn things in the first place.

Being a long time Aztec fan, I helped myself to a copy of Steve Barone's new book, "Aztec Uprising," a rather complete history of Montezuma's marauders under the generalship of Don Coryell.

Don even penned the foreword for Barone's tome. And well he should, because more than anything else, "Aztec Uprising" is a tribute to Coryell and his efforts in bringing major league football to Montezuma Mesa.

To quote from Don's words, "I love San Diego . . . (and) I expect to see the Aztecs in football's top 10 in the near future."

It's in hard cover out of Joyce Press and the best gift I got for myself in years. And it's something I want that I can also afford. One of the others I can't.

But oh, what a dream it would be. Golf lessons for the swingers who can't get out and play very often. Golf lessons at home. Golf lessons in a hotel room. Golf lessons at night.

It's a cartridge case and kit of golf lessons on film. It would probably be useful enough for the daily teesmith, but for guys like me, who can't get free often enough to keep up with their game, it would be a bonafide blessing.

It's called "Shoot in the 70s, Guaranteed," and sells for around $30 from an outfit located at 20514 Roca Chica Drive up in Malibu. (If you're interested the zip is 90265)

It comes with an instruction book, three full color super-8 films one each on fundamentals, driving and putting, and the third on chipping, pitching and iron play, and your own super-8 viewer. You even get instant replays.

It's the best thing to happen to golf since they invented the dry martini. Now you not only have your pro with you at all times, but you get his advice whenever it's convenient for you and you don't have to listen to his sales pitch on a new pair of slacks or how your irons are getting old.

I think I'll get it for my wife. She doesn't play golf, but what the hell, she's getting me a new rug for our living room. Merry Christmas.

Littler Favored in Andy Williams Open

"It was a very good year." Gene Littler could well sing it, if not sing it well.

Littler must rank among the favorites for the ninth annual Andy Williams San Diego Open golf tournament February 11-15 on the basis of finishing fifth on the 1975 money list with tour earnings of $182,883.

It was the best year in 22 on the tour for Gene financially by over $70,000. He took firsts in the Bing Crosby Pro-Am, the Danny Thomas-Memphis Open and the Westchester Classic, dazzling the galleries in the latter event with a hole in one and two eagles.

All of this by a slight, unassuming 45-year-old veteran of the golf wars who had been told he might never play competitive golf again after an operation for lymphatic cancer in 1972.

His recovery became official in July of 1973 when he won the St. Louis Children's Hospital Golf Classic in a tense duel over final holes with Lee Trevino, Bert Yancey and Bob Goalby. His three subsequent first places give him a total of 28 tour wins and career earnings of $1,203,541 through 1975.

T.O.C. Three Times

This courageous and remarkable comeback, which in 1973 earned him the Golf Writers of America Ben Hogan Award, compares with such career highlights as winning the Tournament of Champions three successive years (1955-57), capturing the U.S. Open in 1961, and defeating all the pros in the field while still a young amateur in the 1954 San Diego Open, precursor to the AWSDO.

Littler, noted most of all for the smoothness of his machine-like swing, has something else in his favor at the AWSDO. The Torrey Pines golf couse site is in his home suburban community of La Jolla and he knows its seaside layout like few other golfers.

Golf Viewer Can 'Guarantee 70' Says Producer

A Christmas gift that should please golfers almost as much as a birdie is a kit which includes an illustrated instruction book, three full color super-8 cartridges (one on fundamentals, another on driving and putting and a third on chipping, pitching and iron play) and a super-8 film viewer. You can even have instant replays.

The kit, which is called "Shoot in the 70s, Guaranteed," is available by writing Shoot in the 70s, 20514 Roca Chica dr., Malibu, Ca. 90265 or by calling (213) 456-8728. The kit sells for $30.

Al Geiberger, winner of two tournaments and sixth leading money winner of 1975 with $150,693, said, "Author Hamer Jamieson's innovative concept about keeping the weight on the right side at the address position could be a very positive action in developing a repeating swing, especially for the higher handicappers and intermediate golfers.

IT'S ALL CLEAR — Sports Arena secretary Donna Shoemaker presses a finger against the new plexiglass which now protects fans from flying hockey pucks (and occasionally players). 115 half-inch thick panels measuring 4x6 feet were installed in time for the Mariner's 7-3 rout of the Cincinnati Stingers Thursday. The plexiglass, which cost the arena $26,000, replaced wire mesh fencing.

'Health Food' Enthusiast Poisoned

Sometimes commodities labeled "health foods" are not palatable enough to be worthy of the designation "food." Among these, occasionally one finds an item that is anything but healthy.

A recent newsletter of the County Department of Public Health tells the story of a North County man who was stricken with cyanide poisoning after eating apricot kernels purchased from a health food store.

The man blended 48 kernels in homemade milk shakes for himself and his wife. Because the wife didn't care for the drink, however, the husband drank nearly all of both shakes.

"Within an hour, the man developed a headache, flushing, heavy perspiration, dizziness and violent vomiting," the article reads.

Emergency room diagnosis was cyanide poisoning. Both the husband and wife were treated, though the wife did not feel ill. They were released the same day.

Apricot kernels are relatively toxic, the Health Dept. warns. They contain a substance which in the presence of moisture changes to cyanide poison. Even small quantities of the kernels, which are evidently growing in popularity, may be harmful, says the Health Dept.

Health food enthusiasts are forewarned.

Ag. Preserve Land Hikes Property Tax

Property owners who have contracted with the county to restrict the use of their land under the agricultural preserve program will receive property tax benefits in the amount of $1,250,000 for the 1975-76 tax year.

County Assessor E. C. Williams said that this is made possible by the California Land Conservation Act of 1965 (The Williamson Act), under which 113,500 acres used for agriculture, grazing, flower growing, and poultry raising have gone into the agricultural preserve contract program since its inception in San Diego County in 1969.

In January 1969, the County Board of Supervisors established the first three agricultural preserves totaling 10,300 acres. These actions cost local government that year $220,000 in taxes not received.

Since 1969, approximately $5,000,000 has been lost in property tax revenues to local taxing jurisdictions as a result of the implementation of this State program, a cost that is shifted to the other property taxpayers; and the program is growing.

Williams noted that approximately 80 new applications will become effective for the 1976-77 fiscal year involving an additional 9,500 acres, bringing land under the program to 123,000 acres with an accompanying revenue loss of $1,350,000 per year.

Agricultural preserve program land is restricted to agricultural and related uses for specified periods of time. The Assessor is required to value the properties on the basis of their restricted agricultural income, rather than on open market value, which is the basis of assessment on all other land subject to property taxation.

Clerk, Speedier Than Computer, Wins Back Job

In a unique turn of events, a person has replaced a computer. A senior account clerk produces faster results and annual savings of over $27,000 at the State's Department of General Services, Deputy Director Greg Lipscomb reports.

Carol Gibson, who works for the Department's division in charge of office space for State agencies, has taken over an accounting function previously performed by machine. Due to the long wait for "computer time," it used to take 30 to 40 days after the close of the month to process job logs when placed in a computerized system. The human resources complete the task in ten days.

"Not only is the personal touch faster, but it also produces fewer errors," said Ed Dunk, Chief of the Space Management Division. "This change in procedure demonstrates that the human touch is often more effective than . . . giant centralized computer system," he said.

Dear Editor:

Just a note to thank you for your thoughtful and very informative editorial in the November 20, 1975, edition. Along with the story on Pete Kinzler, it was most helpful in arousing public interest in No-Fault legislation.

I do appreciate your own interest and efforts.

Dear Editor:

Our California legislators in Sacramento should override Governor Brown's veto of SB 204 as their first order of business in 1976.

This legislation would decriminalize and provide specialized help for our victims of beer, whiskey and wine through a very small tax increase on these alcoholic beverages.

The nearly 9,000 subscribers of the Lemon Grove Review and Spring Valley Bulletin are urged to write their thoughts on this matter now to San Diego County's State Senators and Assemblymen.

History of Americans' Novelty Foods Traced in New Publication

Ice cream sodas were born in 1874 when a concessionaire at a Philadelphia fair ran out of the sweet cream he used in his flavored soda drinks and substituted vanilla ice cream. The new confection became an overnight success. In fact, ice cream sodas became so popular that in some Midwestern communities blue-nosed citizens made them an object of Sunday blue laws, banning their sale on the Sabbath.

An ingenious soda-fountain operator in Illinois found a way around the prohibition: he kept the ice cream and syrup and left out the soda — calling his new creation a "Sunday soda." Popularly, they were known as "Sundays" until what was probably another overzealous soul changed the spelling to sundae.

This is one of the many little-known facts in the development of famous American foods, gleaned from the food section of a new book by "Reader's Digest" called "The Story of America."

Crumb's Chips

Another — did you know that potato chips were developed by a man named George Crumb, of all things? He was an American Indian chef at a resort hotel in Saratoga Spring, New York. One evening in the mid-19th century a fastidious diner repeatedly sent back his french fries, complaining they were too thick.

Furious, Crumb sliced potatoes paper thin and threw them in the boiling oil. When done, he served them up as Saratoga chips. For a while they were a Saratoga specialty, but you can't contain a good thing and they soon became one of America's favorite snacks.

Sound Package

The St. Louis Fair of 1904 may not be remembered by many today, but three of its food innovations are: iced tea, the hamburger and the ice cream cone. The cone was an invention of necessity. When an ice cream stand ran short of plates, a neighboring vendor of Persian pastry twisted his wafers into cone-shaped cups. A government anti-pollutant expert recently called the ice cream cone "the only ecologically sound package known."

Do you know how the doughnut got its hole? Doughnuts were originally flat, round, deep-fried cakes brought to this country by early Dutch and German settlers. In 1847, according to legend, a young boy in Maine complained that his mother's doughnuts were raw in the middle. The next time she made a batch, he poked a hole in the middle of each one before they were cooked, and today, most, though not all, doughnuts have holes in their centers.

Then there's the graham cracker, invented by Sylvester Graham in the 1830's. A far cry from today's sweet, soft and crumbly cookie, Mr. [illegible] ham's cracker was one [illegible] America's earliest he[illegible] foods — an unleavened, [illegible] salted biscuit of whole gra[illegible] flour.

Other items whose orig[illegible] are traced in "The Story [illegible] America" are apple pie, [illegible] bonated soda water, cola, h[illegible] dogs, flavored gelatin, p[illegible] nut butter and popcorn.

Inflation hasn't changed the price of ashes.

But it has changed the price of your home. For example, if you bought a $20,000 home in 1968—today it's worth about $27,000. Don't be left with a costly pile of ashes. See me about a State Farm Homeowners Policy that will cover your home for all it's worth . . . and keep it that way with automatic Inflation Coverage

Eligibility Reduced For School Meals

School lunch and breakfast regulations were amended to make more children eligible for reduced price meals in compliance with child nutrition legislation enacted by the current Congress.

The new legislation (Public Law 94-105) sets income eligibility for reduced price meals served through the National school lunch and Breakfast Programs at a maximum of 95 percent above the Secretary's income poverty guidelines. For instance, children from a family of four with an income of $9,770 are now eligible for reduced price meals. Previously, eligibility for reduced price meals was set at a maximum of 75 percent above the national guidelines — $8,770 for a family of four. Reduced price benefits also apply to the Child Care Food Program for children in day care.

No Option

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's regulation change also requires participating schools to serve reduced price meals to eligible children. Previously, schools had the option of choosing whether or not to offer reduced price meals. Reduced price lunches sell for a maximum of 20 cents and reduced price breakfasts sell for a maximum of 10 cents. Lemon Grove and Spring Valley schools have no breakfast programs.

While the level of the income a family may have to be eligible for reduced price meals has been increased, income requirements for free meals remain the same.

States set their own levels of income eligibility for free meals based on the Secretary's income poverty guidelines.

State may go above the Secretary's guidelines by a maximum of 25 percent for free meals but not below. For instance, the Secretary's guides set $5,010 as the level of eligibility for a family of four. States may increase that figure by a maximum of 25 percent — to $6,260 for a family of four.

Report Prompts Hearing of Dehumanized Rape Victims

A report alleging insensitive and inhumane treatment of rape victims who seek police aid, released recently by the Advisory Board on the Status of Women in San Diego has spurred a City Council committee to conduct a hearing on city police treatment of rape victims.

Councilman Leon Williams, disturbed by the report's allegations that rape victims are treated with a lack of dignity, requested the hearing.

The report lists among conditions which dehumanize rape victims the location of the examination room adjacent to the press room and drunk tank, the refusal of the department's contract physician to give medical treatment to the victim and lack of privacy for the evidence examination.

Williams said the City Council should have a hand in developing policy which "more clearly recognizes the trauma, both physical and mental, suffered by the victim."

"We must be sure that the first contact by the victim after the rape is a reinforcing one which recognizes the value of human life, dignity and pride," he said.

A hearing is scheduled before the city's Public Services and Safety Committee in early January.
